POLITICAL PARADE

By CLEM WHITAKER

Order is starting to emerge from political chaos in the madcap hurly-burly contest for U. S. senator in California, which features 12 good men and true, all seeking one seat in the United States senate!

Lines are tightening, the most likely contenders are forging ahead of their also-ran competitors—and while there may still be 12 contestants, officially, on primary election day, the field, for all practical purposes, promises to narrow down to about three major candidates.

The three top-flight contestants are, as the experts view it, U. S. Senator Sheridan Downey, the Democratic incumbent, who was Upton Sinclair's running mate in 1934, when the Socialist author captured control of the Democratic machine and ran for governor on his famous EPIC program. Downey, personally popular, a brilliant campaign orator and an inveterate crusader, is considered vulnerable, if faced by a vigorous Republican opponent at the final election, as he is open to the charge of chasing rainbows and never coming to grips with realities.

Justus Craemer, the country editor who made good in the city, and one of the state's outstanding Republican leaders. Publisher of the Orange Daily News, a member of the state railroad commission and known throughout the nation as the former president of the National Editorial Association, Craemer has perhaps the most thorough grounding of all the candidates in California's rural and urban problems. In his present capacity on the state board regulating all California's railroads, bus and truck lines and public utilities, and in his former position as deputy director of the state department of public works, Craemer has played an important part in ushering in California's new industrial age. Yet in private life he is an orange grower as well as a publisher, and has been to the forefront for years in battles for California agriculture.

Lt.-Gov. Fred Houser, a young Republican leader, elected to his present office a year and a half ago, when Earl Warren was elected governor. Houser, educated at Harvard, served his apprenticeship in politics as an assemblyman, tried for Congress in his Los Angeles district several times, but failed of election. Houser has the support of the Los Angeles Times, while Craemer has the support of more than 300 daily and weekly newspapers throughout the state. Houser has quarreled more or less openly with Governor Warren while Craemer is known as a staunch Warren supporter.

Muriel Knowles Is Bride of Geo. W. Grady

A marriage of interest to Campbell friends was that of Miss Muriel Knowles and George W. Grady which was consummated recently in Yuma, Arizona, at the home of the Rev. A. B. Roberts.

The bride's costume was a blue suit with brown hat and accessories, and her flowers were a corsage of red roses and gardenias.

A honeymoon was spent in southern California and Mexico and the couple are now established in San Francisco where the groom is employed.

Mrs. Grady is the eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Knowles of Rincon avenue and is a graduate of Campbell schools and San Jose State college, where she majored in home economics. She was a member of Delta Nu Theta, home economics honor society and Kappa Delta Pi, educational honor society.

After completing postgraduate work she taught in San Francisco, conducting home economics courses in three schools.

The groom is a native of Washington but has been in San Francisco for some time, following travels in the Pacific islands and the Orient.

Ralph J. Vick At Texas Field

Lubbock (Tex.) Army Air Field.—Arriving here with Class 44-E, Aviation Cadet Ralph J. Vick, son of Mr. and Mrs. Terry Vick, Route 1, Campbell, began the final period of pilot training at this advanced two-engine school of the Army Air Forces training command. After a few more weeks of intensive training on the ground and in the air he will receive the coveted silver wings of a bomber pilot and become a flying officer in the army air forces.

Carolyn Burgess Wed At Santa Ana

Miss Carolyn Noble Burgess was married on March 4 to Raymond Lester Heatherington in the Santa Ana air base chapel.

The former Miss Burgess is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Malcolm Stuart Burgess and lived in Campbell for a number of years, graduating from Campbell high school in June, 1942.

The groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. R. M. Heatherington of Santa Clara.

who started the race with fairly good followings are State Treasurer Charles G. Johnson, State Board of Equalization Commissioner William G. Bonelli, and Phil Bancroft, the Walnut Creek farmer. But their strength, it is reported, has been fading as the major contenders have drawn ahead.

There just isn't room in one field for 12 candidates—and the field is narrowing!

Robert Weavers Moving to Carmel

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Weaver, who for the past seven years have been residents of Campbell, have sold their home on Milton avenue and purchased property in Carmel. The property in Carmel is called the Green Lantern and is a 12-unit hotel-cottage combination.

Mr. and Mrs. W. B. Billinger, former owners of the Green Lantern, have bought the Weaver home. Moving of the two families is taking place today, Mrs. Weaver and children, Peggy and Dianne leaving with their furniture, and Mr. Weaver leaving Saturday.

Bob Weaver has been manager of the Standard service station in Los Gatos, and has been transferred to a station in Carmel. He is president of The Footlighters of Campbell, chairman of the local Red Cross drive this year, and a member of the Los Gatos Kiwanis club.

Mrs. Weaver has had charge of a kindergarten class at the grammar school, has been a very active charter member and director of The Footlighters. Last year she was a vice president of the grammar school PTA and headed its finance and budget and publicity committees. She is secretary-elect this year. Mrs. Weaver has been active in the Women's Service club, serving as secretary last year, and has aided her husband materially as a lieutenant in the current Red Cross drive.

The community extends best wishes to these young people for success in their new venture.

To Establish Legion Post In Campbell

Veterans of World war I and a few of the present war who have been discharged are arranging for the establishment of an American Legion post in Campbell.

A number have already signed up to become charter members, but the list will not be closed until April 10, so that others interested should contact Ray Wood, Alvin Carter or Howard J. Smith.

The following message outlining the purposes of the Legion is part of an address by Robert G. Simmons, chief justice of the supreme court of Nebraska:

"The American Legion offers you a comradeship and a fellowship based on common experience in the armed services; it offers you social contacts and an opportunity to meet and know other servicemen in any community wherever you may go, and to meet and know men who will give you friendly advice and help you on any problem; it offers you assistance and service on any claims you may have with the veterans administration and with the other government departments; you cannot pay for this service save as you elect to work with the Legion in serving others; it gives you the right to wear the button of the American Legion, which is a badge of distinction and honor among all good citizens; remember always that the right to wear that insignia must be earned by honorable service in the armed forces; it cannot be purchased nor can favor confer it; it offers you an opportunity to serve your fellow veterans; and, finally, it offers you unlimited opportunities to continue your services to your community, your country, God and humanity." Date and place of initial meeting will be announced later.

Civil Service Wants Nurses

The United States Civil Service commission is seeking public health nurses at $2,190 and $2,433 a year, including overtime pay, for the United States Public Health service, federal security agency, and Indian service, including Alaska, department of the interior.

April 6 Is Last Day to Register

April 6 is the last day to register for the May 16 primary, which this year combines the May presidential and the August primaries. G. E. Farley, local registrar, advises anyone in doubt as to his registration to check up before that date.

Campaign Manager Robert Weaver reported the solicitations for the quota of $4500 had been tapped by $500 as of Wednesday afternoon.

The hearty thanks and appreciation of all the citizenry of the district is extended to the manager and his cohorts of workers for their efforts in accomplishing this task, and they in turn thank all who contributed to the fund.

Navy Mothers Card Party Is Big Success

The benefit card party held by the San Jose Navy Mothers club at Cambrian school Saturday night was a social and financial success. With the proceeds the boys at Shoemaker hospital near Pleasanton will have comfortable and attractive sun rooms in which to spend their hours of convalescence.

The committee, headed by Mrs. Archie Keesling and Mr. Keesling, associate member, extend words of appreciation to the many friends in Cambrian and Campbell for their support and generous cooperation. Valuable prizes were donated, contributions offered and a great number helped to fill the hall for the card playing.

SIT TIGHT

It is hard to go on being interested in locking the barn door on a horse that doesn't show the slightest desire to run away. After a while, it begins to seem foolish to waste the energy locking the barn door. By and by, the door is left unlocked. And then—

Everybody knows the ending to that story.

There's an analogy in this civilian defense thing. It has been many months since hard-working men and women all over the Pacific coast began sitting on the lid of what looked like a pretty hot situation. A lot of plans were made, a lot of people were trained, a lot of valuable time was spent getting the civilians in California ready for the sort of disaster modern warfare is apt to bring.

But nothing happened.

Now the picture looks much better. American men and boys and women too, are still dying unnatural deaths, but they're dying far away. The war in the Pacific seems to be moving toward Tokyo, and not toward San Francisco and Los Angeles. And people here and there in California are beginning to talk about getting up off that lid and walking around. Why not—we're safe, aren't we?

It's precisely in order to get the answer to that question that representatives of the California State War council went to Lt.-Gen. Delos C. Emmons, commanding general, western defense command, some ten days ago. If anyone ought to know just how much we need in the way of civilian protection here in California, it's the army. And the army has agreed to tell us. As the state director of civilian defense reported to the war council at its March meeting, the general immediately appointed a special military investigating committee to have a look-see around our state. The committee knows where the spots are in which the enemy is interested. The committee is going to find out just what kind of protection is available. Within 30 days it will tell the general. The general will tell the war council. And the war council will pass the word on to you who are spending time and energy and money on civilian protection.

In the meantime, sit tight, won't you?

RED CROSS DRIVE

When the huge allied force strikes across the channel in the greatest military campaign in all history, it will be composed not only of the men and machines that must deal death to the enemy, but the men and equipment that will brave the battle to bind up the wounds of the fallen and save the lives of both friend and foe.

This will be just another job for the Red Cross in the ceaseless performance of its mission of mercy. For decades this great humanitarian organization in peace and in war has never failed to give aid to those in need regardless of race, creed or color.

The Red Cross drive to raise $200 million — the minimum need — closes at the end of this month. Every person should give all he can in support of it. The extreme worthiness of this cause has been given practical recognition in the business-sponsored radio and newspaper advertising and in such donations as the $100,000 from Pacific Telephone company, $100,000 from Bank of America, and the $108,000 from Standard Oil company of California.

Every dollar helps the boys in the foxholes, provides food and assistance for our soldiers in enemy prison camps, gives aid to the families of fighting men—in short, helps those who are helping preserve America.

If you haven't given yet, give now—and generously.

REGISTER NOW

Register now and be sure you vote in the primary election in May!

The ballot box is the voice of the people in a democracy. If the privilege to vote is ignored or neglected by a large part of the citizenry then we have a democracy in name only—not in fact.

There never was a time when it was so essential for the people to make themselves heard, to express their wishes through the power of the ballot. Too many of us wax eloquent in complaint about our government but when the opportunity comes to speak most effectively—with our vote—we are often "too busy" or we "forget" or we conclude that our "one vote won't make any difference" in the final outcome.

Registration for the primary election closes April 6. In spite of the fact that California's population is a million greater than four years ago, registrations this year are below those of 1940. This ought not to be. All who did not vote in the 1942 election, or have moved since November 1942, or have changed their names by marriage, must register in order to vote.

So, register NOW—and be sure you vote.

ARABIAN OIL

It is well that the senate is undertaking an investigation of the Arabian oil project. Before any more of our money is put into the proposed $135 million oil pipeline which is to be built across Arabia, the American people should know all the facts.

If Arabia is the only place we can obtain sufficient oil to meet our future needs—that fact should be made clear. If there are other resources equally adequate—that should also be revealed.

Secretary of the Interior Harold Ickes who is in charge of the project is no doubt sincere in his effort to obtain for us an abundant oil supply to back up our own reserves which are said to be dwindling rapidly. However, his admission that we have "to take a chance" on getting involved in future war because of this pipeline is most disquieting.

The American people realize that oil is as necessary to our military and industrial machinery as air is to the human body. They know that without oil, transportation would be paralyzed and 50,000 communities in the nation which depend solely on motor transportation would be isolated. They know that our millions of highway motor carriers, so vital both in peace and in war, must have oil. They know that America without ample oil would soon become a second-rate power. But they also are aware that getting too deeply involved in Arabia is like working around a powder barrel with a blow torch. Things might blow up at any time.

Much is being said both for and against this project. However, when the facts are revealed, the public can form an opinion for or against it. Hence, the senate investigation should serve a good purpose.

WHAT ABOUT THE YOUNGSTERS?

The sharp rise in juvenile delinquency is causing increasing concern among those who deal with youth problems.

Unfortunately, this problem is apparently not causing enough concern where it should be the greatest—that is, among parents. This is not to say that many, if not most parents are concerned with their children's welfare. But too many are not.

Not long ago a policeman in an eastern city took into custody a half dozen boys and girls of teen age who were out at a late hour. When he telephoned their parents he found that five out of six of them weren't interested. What is more, four of them told him in no uncertain terms that they didn't appreciate being awakened by the telephone at a late hour.

It has been said that there are no delinquent children—just delinquent parents. J. Edgar Hoover, head of the FBI declared, "Juvenile crime flourishes where the home ties have been weakened by divorce, separation, the desertion of a parent or the ignorance, carelessness or indifference of fathers and mothers."

Youngsters are naturally imaginative. The desire for excitement and adventure is by no means unusual.

Lawrence Tibbett is the next and sixth event of the San Jose Concert Series. This great singer, said to be "greater than ever" this year, will sing a program of Brahms, Handel, Schubert, Wolf, and some of the world's greatest songs. Edward Harris will be at the piano. Lawrence Tibbett is one of the leading baritones of the Metropolitan opera as well as one of the greatest concert singers. Tickets for the Tibbett recital are on sale at the Denny-Watrous box office.

Emergency Production Assistants

Four emergency production assistants are to be appointed to serve in Santa Clara and San Mateo counties as part of the federal emergency program intended to assist California agriculture in reaching the increased production asked for in 1944. This announcement was made by Harold Ellis of the University of California news service.

Their headquarters will be in San Jose. Appointments will be made early in April at the request of the war food administration and the U. S. Department of Agriculture.

This emergency program will be supervised by the agricultural extension service of the university.

Miss Lois Bohnett, younger daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Bohnett was a member of the midyear graduating class at San Jose State and joined a group of Zeta Chis for the holiday week.

Tomas J. Fortoni, 23, of Campbell, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Fortini, and Mary Navarro, 19, of San Jose were issued a marriage license on Monday.

Faithful in Every Sacred Trust

These normal urges should not be smothered, but should be dealt with sympathetically, understandingly. The need for such handling is all the more necessary at the present time when tales of thrilling war adventures fill them with the yearning to share actively in these experiences.

Boys and girls naturally seek each other's companionship. This companionship should be provided against the background of the home rather than found wherever chance might produce it.

No one thing can be termed a cure-all for juvenile delinquency. But certain it is that when more parents devote more time to understanding and helping their children there will be less of it.

THE BOOK 'MARK

by marty

"The Curtain Rises"

By Quentin Reynolds

Here is one of America's favorite war correspondents telling in his own inimitable style his story of the Battle of Salerno, events in Russia, North Africa and Sicily.

Paraphrasing Random House, the publisher of this book, makes this all-sweeping claim about the life of the book: "Reynolds' eye-witness stories of the fight on the Salerno beachhead and his subsequent visit with General Montgomery will be reprinted in anthologies for many years to come."

This book covers incidents that happened in such widely separated places as Trinidad, Cairo, Palestine and Russia. From there he hurried to North Africa just in time to join the Sicilian invasion. In Sicily, Quent (as he so readily calls himself), who, in five former books, has beaten the drum for the RAF, the British army and the Red Army, discovered the American army. It was the first time he had seen them in combat. Few flag wavers ever waved the flag with more fervor than does Reynolds when he talks of our troops in combat. In fact, he seems to have discovered in the war zone a great and gorgeous America which he never knew existed before.

After Sicily fell he went back to Algiers, and in his book "The Curtain Rises" he has written one whole chapter about Room 140 of the Aletti hotel. Algiers was more crowded than modern Washington, but Reynolds managed to inveigle the British consul into inviting him to share his room. Within ten minutes Reynolds had asked the poor unsuspecting consul whether he might have a guest or two in. The British consul said he didn't mind. Such notable war correspondents as John Steinbeck, John Lardner, H. R. Knickerbocker and several others were waiting outside the hotel corridor to get the word. When Reynolds opened the door and motioned them to enter, they brought in their sleeping bags and complete correspondents' equipment and set up house in his room.

From Algiers the author set off with the invasion fleet toward the Bay of Salerno. . . . Enough has been said about the book already. It is sufficient to mention Quentin Reynolds. His latest publication is but another triumph, equal in interest and up to the minute information, with each succeeding book.

AMERICAN HEROES

"He gallantly gave his life in the defense of his country," ends his citation for the Silver Star. During fighting on Tulagi, Marine Private George Alfred Johnson, of Coatesville, Pa., with utter disregard for his personal safety, rushed to the mouth of a cave that sheltered Jap snipers and blasted them out with hand grenades until he was killed. He'd want us to buy War Bonds to fulfill that mission! War Bonds—The Ideal Christmas Gift.

UC Tests Vitamins In Frozen Turkey

Berkeley, March 29—It's all right to eat frozen turkey, if you can get it, and don't worry about the vitamins being lost in the cold. Recent tests show that freezing storage does not materially lessen most of the important B-complex vitamins found in turkey meat. Experiments by Dr. Bessie B. Cook, assistant professor of home economics, and Miss Marion B. Smith, associate in the experiment station, on the Berkeley campus of the University of California, reveal that after cooking the frozen meat contained almost as much of the B vitamins as the cooked fresh meat.

Turkey meat is one of the excellent sources of the B vitamins in spite of the fact that one-fourth to one-half of the thiamine, riboflavin, niacin, and pantothenic acid are lost as a result of oven roasting. Thiamine content in both the white and dark meat compares well with that in lean beef. Riboflavin values are approximately the same as beef in the dark meat, but less in the light meat. The niacin found in the dark turkey meat is about the same as in beef but the white part of the turkey has approximately twice the amount of the beef, Dr. Cook said.

Dr. Cook, noted home economist and research worker, is a frequent visitor to Campbell where she visits her sister, Mrs. George Jeffers, and family.

P. G. and E. ELECTRIC CAPACITY EXCEEDS that of GRAND COULEE and BONNEVILLE Combined

MUCH HAS BEEN SAID about the large electric power projects of the Federal government—Bonneville and Grand Coulee in Washington and Oregon, Boulder Dam on the Colorado River.

They have been widely publicized for the contribution they have made to war production—for the power they have provided for industry, commerce and agriculture on the Pacific Coast.

But the fact is that the P. G. and E. has much greater installed capacity, including purchased power, than any of these Federal projects—48.7 per cent more than Bonneville and Grand Coulee combined, 89.7 per cent more than Boulder Dam.

During 1943 the P. G. and E. supplied power to approximately 27,000 industrial plants and affiliated operations. Bonneville and Grand Coulee together served only fifteen, six of which are aluminum.

P. G. and E. power went to 40 shipyards and allied plants, 33 iron and steel plants, 4 magnesium plants, 7 cement plants, 126 food processing plants, and more than 26,700 smaller industrial plants. P. G. and E. also served 80 military and other governmental establishments; Bonneville and Grand Coulee served 15.

All this in addition to taking care of the normal requirements of more than a million regular customers in the home, in business and on the farm. Such is the achievement of free enterprise.

Always building ahead, soon we will add the 65th generating plant to our far-flung system—Pit No. 5, the largest hydroelectric powerhouse in the network.

Sixty-five power plants to speed victory, to serve a growing population, to keep northern and central California prosperous and great in the postwar period!
